He had an unexpected wingman for his “fowl” sex crimes.

A “depraved” British man has been jailed for three years for having sex with chickens, even after he killed them — while his wife filmed it for their “family vids,” according to reports.

Rehan Baig, 37, was busted after a tipster told the UK’s National Crime Agency that he had child porn — with officers finding “a number of indecent images of children” at his home in Bradford, prosecutor Abigail Langford told his sentencing hearing, according to the Sun.

“Also located among the devices interrogated were moving images showing the defendant engaging in penetrative sexual intercourse with a number of chickens,” Langford told Bradford Crown Court on Monday.

“The defendant caused the death of the chickens on each occasion,” she said — with one of the videos even showing Baig having sex with one of the animals in his basement after it had died.

His wife, Haleema Baig, filmed him with a phone and GoPro, and the clips — which also included abuse of a dog — were kept in a file called “family vids,” the report said.

The wife was “heard to make sexual encouraging remarks towards the defendant and engages in sexual intercourse with him,” Langford told the court, calling her a “willing participant.”

Judge Richard Mansell called the “depraved, perverted and despicable” acts “beyond comprehension,” saying they would make anyone “sick to the stomach,” according to the Bradford Telegraph & Argus.

He told Baig he was guilty of “unspeakable cruelty to the animals he abused for his own sexual gratification,” saying that the “pain and suffering was horrific,” the local paper said.

Baig was sentenced to three years in prison after admitting three counts of intentionally performing an act of penetration on live chickens, as well as possessing extreme pornographic images, making indecent photographs of children and possessing cocaine and cannabis resin.

He was also banned for life from keeping any animal and he must be on the sex offender register for life, the reports said.

His wife pleaded guilty to three aiding and abetting counts for filming her husband. She was sentenced to six months in prison, suspended for 18 months, during which she must get rehabilitation, the local paper said.
